All Kerry manufacturing facilities and standard operating procedures have been designed to minimise allergenic residue carry over between products, and all procedures are auditable. Due to the nature of our business we do carry allergenic raw materials, as a result we are not able to give any absolute guarantees to the total absence of trace residues. Our continuous improvement plans, product design and validation programs focus on taking all commercially viable steps possible to ensure this is minimised. Imported country regulation should be assessed to ensure the compliance of allergen labelling as allergen exemption rules vary from country to country.
